DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 7, 16, 23 and 26 are all directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claim 7 recites a program, which is viewed as subject matter than is non statutory, as its represents a claim directed towards software, per se, whether or not the program is tangibly embodied or not. The applicant should claim a medium, rather than a program, and claim the medium comprising the code for accomplishing the steps as outlined in claim 7. By properly claiming the medium, the applicant claims subject matter deemed to be statutory.

The same can be said for claims 16, 23 and 26.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Yokoi et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,972,565.

Claim 1 appears to be adequately anticipated by Yokoi et al. since Yokoi et al. teaches a system, method and apparatus for maintenance support for an MRI, wherein data regarding the operations of the MRI are collected and then compared to pre-existing data so as to allow for predictions as to whether maintenance or service is needed on the MRI before a situation occurs wherein the MRI must be taken off-line (e.g. See C5 L29-59; C7 L9-24; C7 L29 – C8 L4 and C8 L39-47).

As per claims 7-8, the rejection of claim 1 is applied herein.

As per claim 9, the rejection of claim 1 is applied herein. Further, Yokoi et al. teaches a time interval until the possible occurrence of the cryogenic cooling system event (e.g. See C7 L39 – C8 L4).

As per claims 16 and 17, the rejection of claim 1 is applied herein.

As per claim 18, the rejection of claim 1 is applied herein. It is noted that the population of cooling systems does not preclude only 1 cooling system. In any event, Yokoi et al. also discloses more than 1 MRI system (e.g. See Figure 1).

As per claims 23 and 24-27, the rejection of claim 1 is applied herein. Further, as best understood, it appears that Yokoi et al. also teaches further cryogenic systems (e.g. Figure 1, multiple MRI apparatus').

Dependent claims 2-6, 10-15 and 19-22 all appear to be adequately anticipated by the disclosure of Yokoi et al. (e.g. See C5 L29-59; C7 L9-24; C7 L29 – C8 L4 and C8 L39-47) and by virtue of being rejected by independent claims 1, 7-9, 16-18 and 23-27.
